White is goldmine for Ubisoft

Thursday, 30 April 2009

Good news for the fans of snowboard games. Because Shaun White Snowboarding has sold more then three million copies, Ubisoft has decided to make a sequel.

CEO Yves Guillemot said during a press conference. There is no chance the sequel will appear this year, (it wasn't mentioned in their annual financial report)

"You can expect more Shaun White in the future," Guillemot plainly told investors. Unfortunately, the Ubisoft executive did not provide a time frame in which the next installment in the Shaun White franchise would surface. Currently, the publisher does not have it penciled in for release during its current fiscal year, which runs through March 31, 2010."