How Many Dreams In The Dark?

Tuesday, 20 July 2010

Chris Brunkhart is a photographer from the Northwest who spent snowboardingâ€™s golden years documenting our culture. As the young â€œsportâ€• exploded, Brunkhart traveled the world on assignment for the mags and shot with the legends like Craig Kelly and Jamie Lynn

In those daysâ€”the 90sâ€”Brunkhartâ€™s images could be seen all over. There were lots of black and whites, enigmatic riders far-flung locations and stormy days at Baker. And now, with the release of his forthcoming, self-published book How Many Dreams In The Dark? The Photography Of Chris Brunkhart weâ€™ll be transported back in time. Transworld got Brunkhart on the phone to answer a few questions about this book and the conversation rambled a bit about his process, the legends, and the old days.
