Snowboarding Style is very important in the world of snowboarding and it will largely determine how you snowboard, with what equipment/gear and where you will be riding.

Basically, snowboarding technique is closer to skateboarding and surfing than skiing. If you are a skier, your knowledge of edge control, snow, unweighting and general balance and co-ordination will come in handy, but you will have a lot to un-learn.

sticker up

Tricks

Â

BackSide 180Â°

The backside 180 is a basic trick that's as stylish as hell and takes a lot of control to master.

Â

50-50 handrail

Before you approach this trick, you need to be consistently good at 50-50's on both flat and angled rails in the snowpark.

Â

Switch backside 360Â°

The switch backside 360 is very respected amongst snowboarders because in the right hands it's a very stylish move that looks easy to the tourists, but is in fact quite hard to do right, what with it being a fakie to fakie move.

Â

Switch underflip

The Underflip, like the Rodeo and Rodeo Back before it, has become the move of the moment for kicker specialists the world over.

Â

HalfPipe

It will be your best friend, and your worst enemy. When the lift lines are too long or the trails are too icy, it will always be there, something fun to do, but if you're just starting out it can be the scariest trail on the hill.

Â

Cab 270s to FS Boardslide

This is a pretty advanced trick but in my opinion nowhere near as hard as you'd think it would be.

Â

guide to jibbing

There seems to be a lot of confusion regarding the naming of jibs. It's all pretty simple though and hopefully this article will clear up any confusion.
